COMMENT OF

HUNGARY TERROR

WEEK today the United A Nationa Assembly will consider the report of the UN Commission of Inquiry into the events of last October in Hungary. will be asked to take into consideration developments in that unhappy, country since the Commission reported. And that is right, since the story is a continuing one.

There had been hope that the worst features of the repression were over: that the Kadar Government. once firmly in control, with the support of the Soviet forces, would exercise comparative leniency. An amnesty had been promised. Communist oppresswould no doubt continue. But there was -some--expectation---that--theterror would end; that there would be a cessation of executions and deportations and brutalities.

ARRESTS

FIGHE hope and the expectation have not been fulfilled. - The terror continues. After a slight luli it has been resumed and intensified. Day after day there come new reports of new arrests, of new sentences. Sentences have been revised. Men originalsentenced to terms imprisonment nave been condemned death and executed. There was a sharp change for 'the worse in Julybecause possibly changes in the Communist high command in Moscow had aroused new hopes of a more liberal policy in the satellite countries, The Kadar government made its intentions very clear, On July 11 the Minister of the Interior called for the continuance of the fight to "annihilate" all "counter-revolutionary forces." The new wave of urrests began on the night of July 17. How many there have been is unknown. For on July 16 the Kadar government had issued a decree prolonging indefinitely its Correspondent on board the self-given power to arrest and imprison anybody with-out trial and without any but the vaguest charge. But there is no doubt the number runs into many thousands.

Nor is the number of executions known. In July the official figure was 104. But the International Commission of Jurists had evidence suggesting that it was already in fact over 2,000. Since July no official figures have been given. That in itself is grimly significant. The fate of Imre Nagy, former Communist Premier, is unknown.

Norway's Scottish Bard

The payillon where Grieg worked in the grounds of his home Troldhaugen near Bergen. . .

Edvard Hagerup Grieg was born June 15, 1843 in Bergen on the west coast of Norway; died in Bergen September 4, 1907. Descended from the Scottish merchant Alexander Grieg, who had emigrated to Bergen from Aberdeen in 1779.

Grieg studied for several years in Leipzig from 1858, later in Copenhagen and Rome; settled in Norway in 1866. Married in 1867 his cousin Nina Hagerup (1845-1935), known as a singer and an ingenious interpreter of her husband's songs.

Edvard Grieg was stimulated by Franz Liszt to a new study tour to Rome, 1869-1870. Conductor of the Philharmonic Society, Olso, founder and director of the Music Society, 1871. From 1874 Grieg spent his time partly abroad, partly in Norway. Conductor of the Harmonian Music Society in Bergen 1880-1882. Gave concerts, as a conductor or as a planist, in London, Birmingham, Copenhagen, Paris, Leipzig, Munich, Amsterdam, Vienna, Warsaw, Prague, Kiel and other places. A music festival was arranged on Grieg's Initiative in Bergen, 1898, with international participation.

Grieg was awarded honorary doctor's degrees at various centres of learning, and was from 1874 in receipt of an annual artists' grant from the Norwegian state. Since 1953, annual festivals; largely devoted to the music of Grieg, are held in his native Bergen.

FOR two generations Edvard Grieg was the central If figure in the history of Norwegian music, symbolising its very spirit and setting, a standard by which other composers have been measured. Only in the last two decades have young composers struck out in other directions and shown that other ways and means than those employed by Grieg can also be used to express the innately national sense of melody. Today their music is felt to be just as Norwegian as that of Grieg.

London, Sept. 3.

Taking stock of the last five years in which I have been privileged to play in English county cricket, I would say they have been the most progressive five years the game has known for generations. The improvement of the overall standard has been staggering.

I know one gets lots of people prepared to complain -and I do not deny them that right - but, as a player charged with the task of getting wickets and scoring runs, know what I am talking about. I would say that competition is fifty per cent tougher today than it was in English county cricket of five years ago. The reason is simple. First of all there was the immediate post-war recruitment of youngsters and the gearing of older players, gone rusty toting rifles or flying aeroplanes, to get cricket moving from a standstill. About five years ago that rehabilitation period was complete.

Since then the youngsters ting down what I think is likely have steadily matured and alto happen. TELEVISION—SHY FOOTBALLERS: YOU CAN'T BLAME THEM

Says TOM FINNEY

To be televised, or not to be televised. That is one of soccer's big talking points at the moment. Just because some clubs like Manchester United and Nottingham Forest refused to be televised without payment during training many people are saying that footballers are prima donnas.

Is it true that footballers are afraid of looking at the "dickie bird" in the television camera or the pressman's camera without payment?

Let's be quite frank about this. You wouldn't get a troupe of dancing girls to appear on television without being paid. And in the past, some photographers have taken pictures of footballers either individually or in groups, then sold them Yafer at a profit to themselves.

footballers are a little cagey first place he didn't have a they belong. I think they will about posing before a camera. This is a dicklish problem, because every thinking footballer must realise that he is a public entertainer; that publicity is think we can unless clubs "gates" almost reached the good for him and helps him in use their floodlights. Then, inhis profession. At the same stead of crowding in two games on a day when the Manchester time, no man wants to stand in a week, they could play three City v. TOP-LEVEL TALKS

That is why I believe, sooner or later, this question of payment for appearing on television should be settled at highest level, with the Players' skelter start to the season) Union there to negotiate on behalf of professional footballers.

If this were done, individual players or clubs would not be left on their own to make their own decisions in this matter. Speaking personally, I have always found that whenever a chap appears as an individual on television he is paid. The big argument - seems to be: Should there be payment when a whole team is in the picture?

On a ticklish problem like this, I feel that if players are doing their normal training they should not object if they are televised or photographed. That is all part of the job.

The time to ask for payment is when players are brought back for special efforts. After all, they are then giving up their own time. They are doing special poses or tricks for the cameramen, and they should be paid for showing their skill in this way.

If, however, it is just a normal training shot, then—again Scot followed me all over the not object. But for the good of the game I do hope this matter | ternational class. is settled amicably all round, Television needs football as much as football needs television. A commonsense approach by both parties should from out this little storm in a teacup.

INTO ACTION

In my travels round, the world soccer stars from overseas have ucen astonished at the way we "rev" into action at the start of the season by playing two games a week.

I recall one famous continent-al star saying: "It is crazy, Tom. You don't iffive time to get pro-perly match-fit before you are plunged into all these matches. It is too much for the muscler."

Well, one must admit that the League Championship is often won and lost in the first six weeks of the season. A smooth start, freedom from injuriesthat's what every manager prays

West Indians Victory

Hastings, Sept. 3. A sparkling innings of 91 in minutes by Rohan Kanhai helped the West Indies beat L. E. G. Ames' cloven by four wickets here today.

Set to get 270 for victory in hours five minutes, the tourists raced to their target with three quarters of an hour to spare. Scores were: L.E.G. Ames' XI 322 for nine declared and 238; West Indies 291 and Kanhal, strong on the leg side, hammered the bowling for a six and 17 fours, making his D1 out of a stand of 136 with Andrew Gantenume (60). Gancaume, batting solidly for two hours 20 minutes, hit seven

Both Kanhai and Nyron (17) completed 1,000 runs for the tour.

Murray (Middlesex) John became the second player to perform the wicketkeeper's double of 1,000 runs and 100 wickets in a season when he stumped Kanhai. Only Ames himself had previously performed the feat.

In the morning Ames' cleven, hitting out freely, lost their remaining coven wickets for the addition of 117 runs, of which Jack Manning (25), and Alan Moss (26) put on 51 for the last wicket in 14 minutes.-Router.

It is for this reason that some long time, simply because in the back in the First Division where chance to let the injury heal.

UP TO STAY

Nottingham Forest, one of the grand old clubs in English football, spent a long long time trying to get back into the First Division. Now they are in soccer's Upper House I think they will stay there.

Preston played Billy Walker's team the other Saturday, and they looked a very useful out-It to me. As you might expect with a manager like Mr Walker, who was in his day one of the greatest inside-forwards in English football, the Forest try to play cultured sceeer.

The department which took my eye was the half-back line. Their left-half Burkitt is a fine ball player and centre-half Bobby MacKinlay is a real stopper. This fall raw-boned field. He is the sort of player who could develop into real in-
